Introduction

1 Not a sprint

There's so much emphasis placed on landing a tech role but there's little placed on how to navigate and level up in the space.

Prelude to the Work

2 Find your passions

Your passions can help take you further in your career.

3 Time to reflect

Before moving forward, it is always important to reflect on how far you've come and what is holding you back from going further and learn what you want in your next position.

4 Setting goals

Setting SMART goals for yourself is critical as you develop your tech career.

On-the-Job Preparation

5 Nurture relationships

As you try to grow your career in tech, it's often challenging to figure out how to go from point A to point B.

6 Identify opportunities

The key to career growth is to identify opportunities that likely will make you uncomfortable but ultimately will make you more skilled and likely more visible.

7 Be a leader

To grow in your career, you must show you are a leader before you have the title to back it.

8

Showcase your work

The harsh truth is that in today's age you must show your work.

Outside-the-Job Preparation

9

Attend industry events

Connections outside your current workspace are arguably more important than that of the ones internally.

10

Find a mentor

Finding a mentor or a career coach outside of your job is often more effective than finding one internally.

11

Upskilling

To take the next step in your career you will always need to learn new skills and implement them into your toolbox.

12

Build your community

Building your work community can help you advance your skills and increase your accountability.

Build Your Presence

13

Revamp your resume

Modifying your resume to reflect your newfound technical skills and leadership roles can help ensure you're presenting skills aligned with your desired role.

14

Establish an online presence

In 2022 there is nothing more valuable to your brand than having an online presence.

The Work Never Ends

Re-evaluate and assess

After you've set your goals, done the work inside and outside of your job, the work isn't finished because growth never stops.
