Introduction

1 Learning how to live

Tools for Life

2 The first law of life

We're all subject to the Second Law of Thermodynamics and the forces of entropy.

3 To thine own self be true

You've probably been told to "be yourself." After this lesson you'll know what that means logically and practically so you can begin living it out.

4 Be antifragile

It's tempting to avoid all potential stressors and dangers.

5 Be self-disciplined

If you want to achieve more or just get your life in order, you'll need to cultivate self-discipline.

6 Action is character

While personality tests may incline you to think your character is fixed, there's always room for change and growth.

7 Use therapy's tools

Some sadness is a natural part of life.

- 8 Channel your inner psychopath
Psychopaths understandably get a bad reputation.
- 9 Directing your future self
Humans are highly prone to neglecting the future consequences of their present decisions.
- 10 Be the architect of your choices
Willpower is only so strong.
- 11 Eat a variety of foods
It seems every time you turn around, there's another fad diet promising health and immortality.
- 12 Be your own fitness instructor
The amount of information on physical fitness can be overwhelming.
- 13 Be your own financial advisor
Money can't buy happiness, but it can help with a lot. This lesson will give you some strategies so you can begin taking control of your own finances.
- 14 Build strong social networks
You're probably underestimating the enormous benefit a strong social network can have on your health.
- 15 Sleep
Scientists still don't understand all the reasons you need to sleep.
- 16 Find your meaning and purpose
The biggest question in all of philosophy is sometimes thought to be, "What's the meaning of life?".
- 17 Be the master of your fate
Life is very complicated, but some of the best advice for it is very simple.

Conclusion

- 18 Final thoughts
